

BARNES SAYS SULZER FAILS

Republican Chairman Thinks State Administration Is Disorderly.

TELLS OF BLUNDERS

Criticizes Election Bills and Signing of Full Crew Act.

DEPARTMENTS LACK HEADS

Speaks of "Sham Battle With Murphy" and "Schoolboy Flareup."

William Barnes, Jr., chairman of the Republican State committee, responds to a request from "The Sun" to give his views on the present State administration.

"I am pleased to do so," he writes, and gives his views on the present State administration.

The Sun has asked me to give my views on the present State administration. I am pleased to do so.

The fundamental law of nature is order. As there can be no higher or more effective law than that of nature and as organization through government is a necessity that human beings may not transcend the rights of others, order becomes the most essential quality of government.

Order, however, is the one thing that is lacking at Albany since the inauguration of Gov. Sulzer, both in thinking and in performance. The Governor opened the legislative session with a volume of words which have been growing more and more incoherent as time has passed, until the climax was reached in his schoolboy flareup on Wednesday last.

There are many specific instances which disclose this disorder, which has created confusion in the State, has ruined public business and reduced the efficiency of public servants. There was the Governor's demand upon Col. Scott, the superintendent of prisons, that he should appoint a warden at Auburn for political reasons in direct violation of the State prison law, which forbids a superintendent to appoint a warden for political reasons; his subsequent removal and the designation of one of the clerks in the Governor's office to act as superintendent in direct violation of section 3 of article 3 of the public officers law, which provides an orderly method for succession in case of a vacancy. Nothing is more demoralizing to a public officer than to have at the head of it a man whose term of office has expired, who knows that he will not be reappointed, who wishes to put his own affairs in order and is left in his position, not knowing what day he will be removed. This is the case of two of the Public Service Commissioners for the Second Department, Mr. Stevens, an efficient head of the department, who is a Republican and will not be reappointed, is still in office, although it is reported that he abandoned it; Mr.
Douglas, whose term of office expired twenty days after the opening of the legislative session of 1913, is the other.
The term of office of Dr. Porter, the health officer, has expired. He knows he will not be reappointed, but no successor has been named. The great highway department is without a head.
The prison department is in charge of a clerk from the Governor's office. There is no State Architect. Demoralization is everywhere.

An Egregious Blunder.

The committee of inquiry appointed by the Governor to investigate the affairs of the State has made its report and has joined in the starting and unconstitutional proposal of Gov. Sulzer that the State should violate its pledge to the holders of its bonds by refusing to contribute to the sinking fund. The committee of inquiry further in analyzing the State has issued a sinking fund made the egregious blunder in stating that, although at the present rate of contributions to the sinking fund, the principal of a $50,000, one hundred year bond issue would accrued in thirty years, the accumulations that amount for the nineteen years that the bonds would still have to be paid would amount to "a present" from the generation to a future one of $12,000,000. The committee failed to take into consideration the fact that interest to that amount on the outstanding bonds during these nineteen years would have to be met by that generation. Section 4 of article XIV of the State Constitution provides that whenever the State has issued a bond and established a rate of contribution to the sinking fund to redeem it, that rate shall be irrevocable. No other course is financially honorable.
The Governor in his inaugural statement had hoped to abolish the State tax, but certainly can be done if the Legislature refuses to levy the tax demanded for the contribution to uphold the financial integrity of the State. It seems inconceivable that any Governor of New York could suggest a course of action so utterly improper.

The disclosure of the Fitzgeralds case, which Mr. Fitzgerald sent out in full prior to election, stating that the Governor had promised to stifle the Fitzgerald case, has disturbed the Governor greatly. Various defenses have been put up, that the defense was never sent, which is not true; that the Governor never knew anything about the Fitzgerald case, which might be true, and that if the Governor did make the

"WORLD'S WORK" HITS BRYAN.

Criticism Printed in Magazine of Envoy to Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—A piece of editorial comment in the current issue of World's Work, of which Walter H.
Page is the editor, in which there is reference to Secretary Bryan, has attracted wide attention here.

Mr. Page is to be Ambassador to Great Britain and the question has arisen as to how the Secretary of State will now contemplate the naming of Editor Page to the most important post in the diplomatic service.

Speaking of the Cabinet, the World's Work says on its first page:

"When we come to the three political appointments—well, they are political.
Their choice is legitimate—provided the department's entrusted to these gentlemen do not suffer."

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all statements pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration appeared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

In view of the fact that all state-
ments pertaining to foreign policy have
thus far in the new Administration ap-
peared from the White House there is
some disposition to think that the
World's Work can claim credit for
prophecy, but whether Secretary of State
Bryan will enjoy having at the premier
post in the diplomatic service one of
the editors of the magazine in which
this prophecy appears is a question
which the onlookers in Washington are
asking to-night.

And then this remarkable sentence:

"The State portfolio the President
must himself hold whenever important
foreign questions come up."

WILD SUNDAY REVEL AT BUSTANOB'S TROT

Negroes in Giddy Whirl With Teacher and Wife and a Grandma of 60.

HUNDREDS IN THE CRUSH

Other Dance Rooms Closed to Teatime Trotters—New Ones Plan to Open.

Just as the clock struck 6 last evening in the Trotterite de Bustanoby a negro professor of the Texas tommy gave the terpsichorean ju just to the beige descendant of a long line of Concho queens, chucked her to the ceiling, caught her deftly, slammed her from his left arm to his right and loosed a long howl—the high gleam of an artist who knew his work was good.
Was there Sunday turkey trotting?
Was there—wait a minute. The negro professor hadn't any more than finished polishing the floor with his woman partner than a well known professor of mathematics in this not unknown city plopped a woman's hat on the back of his head, announced to all within hearing that he might be late to-day for his class in quadratic equations, but he should worry, and sprang onto the floor to imitate with an exceedingly good looking young woman the dance just finished by the brunette professionals.
The young woman was his own wife.
Oh, yes, she was. And as she slid forward in the first dip, in the fastest and freest of all the trots, she sounded a note of caution.

"Sammy," she murmured, "I hope to goodness this doesn't get to the Drexel. It would give him heart failure and cost us a $1,000 job."

Not Room Enough for All.

Whatever Prof. Sammy thought about it was lost in the rhapsodic jangling of piano and banjo and trap drum, but there was no doubt in the world that the $1,500 mathematical job didn't mean any more to him yesterday afternoon than a buffalo nickel. The professor wasn't crawling through the life which they had evidently made in her bottom. They could have been saved had the life saving crew been able to reach them, but the sea was running so high that no boat could have lived.

When the life saving crew refused to take out a boat volunteers were called for, but the life savers refused to let these men have the boat, as they declared it meant certain death to encounter such a sea. Whether or not the survivors on the bark's bottom can live through the night is doubtful, as the seas are breaking over the wreck.

The life saving crew tried to-night to shoot a line over the wreck, but was unsuccessful. The boats of the wrecking crew, which hauled the Mimi off the beach, was responsible for the disaster. The vessel should have been anchored but the wreckers decided to take her out.

On board the Mimi were Capt. Charles P. Fisher of the Portland Engineering and Construction Company, Capt. W. E.
Crose, representing the marine underwriters, Capt. Westfall of the M. E.
Secretary Russell Blackman, seven engineering company, and about ten men of the Mimi's crew.

BRANDT TRAILERS LEAVE HIM.

Three Warned in Minnesota Town and Get Out.

REMONT, Minn., April 6.—Three departmental horse-drawn trailers, owned by E. Brandt, who was released from prison by Gov. Sulzer of New York recently, have been told to leave town. They have departed.

The hint was dropped by friends whom Brandt has made since he found employment in the office of the Crook-ston Lumber Company here.

One of the trailers was came here was named Wood. He worked under direction of Supt. Ringdahl of the Pinkerton office in St. Paul. It is said Ringdahl worked under instructions from an Eastern law firm. Wood trailed Brandt to his work and elsewhere. The town got too warm for the leuth and he left suddenly.

He was replaced by a detective named Bergkeller. The latter confided his mission to a young woman and she told friends of her mission. Bergkeller also left hurriedly. A third detective got a quiet tip and accepted it.

HIGH SCHOOL FRATERNITIES HIT.

Greek Letter Men Adopt a Resolution Against Them.

CHICAGO, April 6.—High school fraternities received what is expected to be a crushing blow in the form of a hostile resolution, which was adopted last night at banquet of the Delta Upsilon Alumni Club and representatives of many other Greek letter organizations at the University Club.

The resolution, which was received enthusiastically by the fraternity men who took part in the meeting, said that no national Greek letter body should admit to membership any candidate who has been a member of a high school fraternity.

The President went for a walk, accompanied by the White House secret service agents, and stopped in at the Tumulty residence. He remained there an hour and had a satisfactory interview with Mr. and Mrs. Tumulty and the six little Tumultys, all of whom were close friends of his back in New Jersey when he was Governor and Mr.
Tumulty was his secretary.

Continued on Fifth Page.

HER GOWN SETS CROWD AFIRE.

Parisian Actress Driven From Long-champs Race Course.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.

Paris, April 6.—Rain spoiled the much expected pleasure at the opening of the Longchamps racing season to-day, but the great crowd in attendance was treated to at least one sensation which was worth the price of admission.

It is the custom for the women to display the latest thing in dresses on this occasion. A Parisian actress of some note, Marcelle Prince, was driven out of the enclosure through sheer ridicule of her costume. It consisted of pale blue silk with bright yellow edging. The corage was ornamented with embroidered forage-motifs and a bonnet of lines of the valley. The skirt had vivid yellow ribbons on one side and on the other a large knot covered with embroidered forage-motifs. The body of the skirt was light and there was a tail at the hem.

She wore headless shoes of the same color as the skirt. There were real lilies of the valley on bows in her cloak, which was of black silk in the style of those worn by men in evening dress.
Her hat, which was in the form of a turban and was also adorned with lilies of the valley and forget-me-nots.

The Prix des Sablons furnished a surprise. It was unexpectedly won by Shannon, bred and owned by Herman R. Duray. There were few American spectators present.

Continued on Fourth Page.

AUTO KILLS GIRL; OWNER RUSHES ON

Joseph F. Moran of Brooklyn Caught After an 18
Mile Chase.

VICTIM ONLY SIXTEEN

Her Chum Runs Screaming Into Princeton After the Accident.

Princeton, N. J., April 6.—Mary Durway, 16 years old, a Princeton high school girl, was killed on Washington road near Farm lane late this afternoon by an automobile of Joseph F. Moran, of 1223 Pacific street, Brooklyn, vice-president and secretary of the Atlantic Basin Trust Works.

The car did not stop. Leaving the girl dead beside the road Mr. Moran and his chauffeur, Irving Hoffman, hurried on toward Brooklyn.